

I understand that my previous submission may not have gotten through, so I am re-requesting with some desperation that you not dilute Indiana's telephone privacy act. This act has given us great relief from unrelenting and uninvited solicitors. We have a telephone for our convenience and necessity, not for their abuse, interruption and interference with our private lives. no everyone can afford or wants an unlisted telephone line. This act has been a god-send; please do not tamper with it.
